Kelly Forehand, injured in last fall's Canyon Eagle-Caprock Longhorn game, was presented a $5000 check from the National Football League Charities during Friday night's home game by Donald Seager of Amarillo. A letter from Pete Rozelle, NFL commissioner, was read during the presentation.

Amarillo developer says he won't give money to CISD for annex okay

Developer of a section of land just southwest of Amarillo said last week he will not pay the Canyon School District any money to gain their approval for annexation of the land by the Amarillo School District.

Richard Reeves of J.B. Coe Lumber Co., developer of a 679-acre tract southwest of Puckett Place subdivision, said he is forging ahead with plans to develop the tract in the belief that homes will be sold even though the land is in the Canyon district.

"I won't buy into it," Reeves said of a proposed formula to be used to fix the donation a developer should make to win local board approval of an Amarillo annexation.

Emmett Fuqua of Quien Sabe

Investment Corp., had proposed two weeks ago that the Canyon School Board establish a formula and require that developers of land to the southwest of Amarillo donate funds to the Canyon district.

He proposed to donate $100,000 to the district in return for the school board's good graces on annexation of a 640-acre tract just north of Reeves' property in southwest Amarillo.

Fuqua termed the payment and the establishment of a formula as ways to repay Canyon district for the loss of tax revenues they might experience should the property be annexed by Amarillo district.

Reeves said he is continuing planning on his subdivision in spite of the school land controversy, which has been an issue for more than two years.

Most of the development, he said, has been annexed into the city limits, streets have been dedicated and home construction should begin early next spring. Construction of apartments and townhouses should begin before that, he said.

Reeves said he feels the demand for housing in Amarillo will outweigh the problems involved in the school controversy and homes in his development will be sold.

More than two years ago, the Amarillo school board offered to annex about 11½ sections, including the property being developed by Reeves, into the Amarillo district.

But, the Canyon school board has adamantly refused to give up any of its school lands to Amarillo.

The local board is currently fighting a Randall County School Board decision made in October 1974 allowing a 160-acre tract to be annexed into the Amarillo district.

The board has taken no action yet on the $100,000 offer by Fuqua or on his proposal that a formula be established to figure other developers' donations.

But, Board President Tom Keeling has said he feels the $100,000 may not be enough money to persuade the Canyon board to allow the annexation.

Tulsa hits Buffs in home opener

Tulsa's touted passing attack fizzled Saturday night but the Hurricane resorted to a more effective form of aerial assault as they whipped the West Texas State University Buffaloes 23-14 in the Buff home opener here.

The talented toe of Kicker Ronnie Kruse, a Dallas sophomore, put the decisive 11 points on the scoreboard for the Hurricane, as he kicked three second-half field goals and two first quarter extra points.

Kruse hit a 20-yarder, a 37-yarder and a 47 yarder to finish off the Buffaloes of Gene Mayfield.

The renowned combo of Quarterback Jeb Blount and Steve Largent failed to materialize as a considerable threat to the West Texans, who, like their opponents, were plagued by fumbles, penalties and unfortunate plays.

Largent, an All-American candidate, brought down only two Blount aeriels during the night for 44 yards and no scores.

Unlike Kruse, Buffalo kicking expert Bruce Wyre had a bad night as he attempted two field goals and failed on both, with one going to the left and the other falling short.

Saturday night's game which pitted the preseason number one and number two ranked teams in the Missouri Valley Conference against each other, began with a series of errors, errors which haunted both teams during the night.

With their backs to the wind, the West Texans kicked off to the Hurricane and on the first play from scrimmage in the first quarter, Fullback Tom Bailey dropped the ball on his own 20 with WTSU's Larry Spears falling on the ball for the Buffs' first offensive chance for paydirt.

But, a straight four plays proved the Hurricane line tough, and the Buffs lost a total of 6 yards on four downs attempting to cross the 20. Wyre's first field goal effort of the night closed the series when his kick went wide to the left with barely two minutes gone from the clock.

When the West Texans turned the ball over on the 20, again to Tulsa, the Hurricane was ready for action and with a good mix of outside and inside plays, the Oklahomaans moved 80 yards in nine plays to score their first touchdown.

A Blount pass to Largent for 38 yards was the highlight of the series. Kruse kicked good and with 9:06 left in the quarter, Tulsa led 7-0.

A Buffalo bobbie following the kick-off set up the next Tulsa score.

Scott Wiley took the kick-off to (See BUFFS, Page 10)

Additions to schools to be eyed

A report from architects on the possibility of expanding Canyon High School to accommodate 500 to 600 more students will be given Canyon School Board members Tuesday night.

E. H. Cantrell of Cantrell & Associates Architects of Amarillo are expected to tell board members what problems they might encounter should they decide to expand the current high school facilities rather than build a new high school structure, according to Supt. Jerry Jacobs.

Jacobs said he asked Cantrell on Wednesday to prepare a brief report on the problems which could be expected should the high school be expanded.

A subcommittee of the Committee for Quality Education, a citizens study group formed by the school board to examine possibilities for reducing overcrowding in the schools, recommended recently that the school board study the possibility of expansion of facilities rather than construction of new schools.

Jacobs said Cantrell will also report to board members on the school lands and buildings now owned by the school district.

Wilton White, a representative of the firm which is developing Estacado Estates subdivision on Bell Avenue in South Amarillo, is expected to speak to board members during the Tuesday session.

Jacobs said White is expected to support passage of a school bond issue to construct new schools in the north part of the (See SCHOOLS, Page 10)

Judge opposes new constitution

Randall County Judge Woody Pond, who lobbied in 1974 against passage of a new state constitution, went on record last week along with two commissioners against the adoption by the state's citizenry of a new basic document this fall.

Monday the county commissioners court as a whole will be given the opportunity to pass a resolution condemning the proposed state constitution and urging that it be defeated at the polls on Nov. 4.

Pond along with Commissioners Dee Griffin and Jim Fletcher voted for a resolution passed Wednesday by the Panhandle County Judges and Commissioners Association urging the defeat of the proposed constitution.

A similar resolution will be presented to county commissioners Monday, according to Pond, who authored the resolution.

The resolution will urge the defeat of all eight amendments proposed for the ballot of Nov. 4. If passed, the eight amendments would replace the current state constitution, which was adopted 100 years ago.

Pond said Thursday he opposes the proposed document because he believes the current constitution "is sufficient to take care of the problems of the State (See JUDGE, Page 10)

the organization that it will direct its efforts at Washington rather than at the state level in an effort to deal with federal programs "to see if Congress will pay some attention to the problems of the 70-million Americans who live in cities under $50,000 population instead of just concentrating on the 400 cities over that size in the entire United States.

"Our aims are simple," he said. "More federal programs aimed at small cities without the mountains of red tape. We simply do not have the staff to compete with the larger cities."

Mayor Bryan was out of the city last week, but City Manager Glen Metcalf said the new association will try to provide some representation in Washington for citizens in smaller cities in the U.S.

He cited the recently-adopted federal community development program, administered through the Department of Housing and Urban Development, as a prime example of the kind of programs Congress is instituting.

"Community development was designed for larger cities," Metcalf said.

In attempting to receive funding under the community development program, local city officials have been bogged down in a sea of red tape and contradictory regulations.

Only recently, after a year of work, did the city make application for $22,000 in community development funds for street paving projects in West Canyon.

about 12,800 in Kimbrough Stadium. Tulsa had been ranked number one in the Missouri Valley Conference in pre-season polls, while the Buffs had been ranked to finish second.

Mayor on steering committee for small cities lobby group

Canyon's mayor will serve on the steering committee of a new lobbying group to represent small cities, the president of which charged last week the federal government is ignoring the needs of small cities.

Dr. J. Manly Bryan has been named to the governing board of the American Association of Small Cities, organized only earlier this month in Austin.

Seguin Mayor Alfred Koebig, president of the AASC, said of the organization that it will direct its efforts at Washington rather than at the state level in an effort to deal with federal programs "to see if Congress will pay some attention to the problems of the 70-million Americans who live in cities under $50,000 population instead of just concentrating on the 400 cities over that size in the entire United States.

"Our aims are simple," he said. "More federal programs aimed at small cities without the mountains of red tape. We simply do not have the staff to compete with the larger cities."

Mayor Bryan was out of the city last week, but City Manager Glen Metcalf said the new association will try to provide some representation in Washington for citizens in smaller cities in the U.S.

City wondering where $$ went

You might call it the Case of the Missing Money. But, that would imply it was originally somewhere for it now to be missing from.

And Canyon city officials aren't sure they ever had the about $25,000 they should have received last spring from the Texas state comptroller's office in city sales tax receipts.

Mrs. Marguerite Strain, the city's finance chief, was scratching her head Friday as she eyed the city's books in an effort to find the $25,000.

She's the one who earlier Friday discovered that city records indicate Canyon never received from Comptroller Bob Bullock about $25,000 in sales tax receipts for the months of January, February and March of 1975.

Her records indicate the first payment for calendar 1975 came in to the city from the comptroller in April and the sales tax check was for $5089, far less than would be anticipated for three full months.

The next check came in May for April's receipts and that check totalled $7,912. Last week the most recent receipts check came in (See CITY, Page 10)

New fire pact pleases Lindsey

After months of negotiations with the City of Amarillo, Randall County Commissioner Paul Lindsey said Saturday he will present to fellow commissioners Monday an agreement for providing rural fire service to the north part of the county which should be cheaper and better than the plan now in service.

Lindsey, who has spearheaded a drive to provide improved fire service to rural business and home owners, said he has negotiated an agreement with Amarillo city officials.

The contract, which commissioners will review Monday, calls for the county to pay a flat $10,000 annual fee to the City of Amarillo for rural fire-fighting service calls.

Under the current contract, which expires Oct. 1, the county pays the city $801 per rural fire call and two months' recent fire call bills from the city amounted to more than $9000.

Lindsey said the negotiated agreement would also provide for extended coverage by the Amarillo fire department in the north part of the county.

Currently, the city is confining its response to fire calls to an area north of Hollywood Road and around the city limits. Under the proposed agreement, Amarillo would have first-call fire responsibility for the portion of Randall County north of Hollywood and east to the county line.

A thorny problem in earlier negotiations, that of whether the city would continue to respond to grass and car fires, was apparently settled in the proposal. Lindsey said the city has agreed to respond to all fire calls, whether grass or structural, for the $10,000 annual fee.

In addition, the proposed agreement calls for Amarillo fire units to provide back-up support (See FIRE, Page 10)

Caballero verdict due private talk

An ad hoc committee which will hear testimony this week in the case of Dr. Emilio Caballero of West Texas State University will not make public its verdict, Chairman Dr. Charles Smallwood announced last week.

The hearing, scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. Thursday and continue through Friday, will be open to the public, but apparently the vote of the committee will not.

"A vote of the committee will be transmitted to the Petitioner (Dr. Caballero), the President (Dr. Lloyd I. Watkins), and the Board of Regents, and will not be made public by the Committee," Smallwood said in a memo to news media.

The hearing will be in room 202 of the activities center on the university campus.

Dr. Caballero, who resigned as art department chairman last January but repudiated his resignation in June in a letter to regents, asked for the open hearing before the committee after receiving in August a letter from Watkins informing him he would not be recommended for the department head position this fall.

Regents in their early August meeting had established the ad (See VERDICT, Page 10)

Attempt to bar media from WTSU faculty council meet fails

A resolution proposed by its chairman to bar the press from West Texas State University Faculty Council meetings was rejected Friday by council members.

Dr. Walter L. Shelly, council chairman and a political science professor, introduced the resolution as the meeting opened.

After 45 minutes of debate among council members and a news reporter, the motion was rejected by a 7-5 vote.

Before beginning scheduled business Friday afternoon, Shelly distributed his resolution to council members and two news reporters.

His resolution said the purpose of the Faculty Council, to serve as a two-way channel of communication between the administration and faculty, was not to serve as a channel of communication between the council and the general community.

"The resolution also stated that coverage of the proceedings of the council would seriously damage the ability of the council to effectively communicate with the Administration . . ."

Faculty Council meetings, the resolution argued, do not fall under the Texas Open Meetings Law.

Shelly's resolution applied only to representatives of news media and not to faculty members or other interested individuals.

While some council members supported Shelly's resolution, others urged that it be rejected.

"I question the legality of it," said Dr. Darrell Munsell, "but I also question the wisdom of it."

Munsell argued that as an elected body, the faculty council should be fully responsible for its decisions.

"I think we should do our business in the open," he said. "It's not our place to close the doors of this body."

Shelly argued that the only power of the Faculty Council was advisory and he questioned whether the press has an inalienable right to cover every meeting in every city and institution.

A motion by Ronnie Waide to table the resolution until an attorney general's opinion on the legality of the move could be obtained was defeated 3-9.

Primary discussion during Friday's session of the council was to center around the controversial and alleged use by administrative-faculty committee on promotion of a student evaluation of faculty members.

Dr. Ray A. Malzahn, academic vice-president, was scheduled to speak to the council on the status of student evaluations. He had been asked during an early September meeting to discuss the use of the evaluations with the council.

But, following the vote which allowed the press to remain in the session, Malzahn asked that he be allowed to present his discussion at a later date when more time would be available.

He said he had to leave campus at 4:30 p.m. and would not have enough time to cover his material and respond to questions.

Following Malzahn's departure, however, council members generally agreed they have been charged to urge that student evaluations of faculty members be used in the future only by individual faculty members in determining their own effectiveness.

A faculty poll taken last spring was again discussed, the results of which noted that 70 percent of the faculty favored student evaluation, but preferred the evaluations be handled only at the departmental level.

Several council members charged two weeks ago that the evaluations, and particularly one question on the evaluation sheets, were used as a primary criterion for determining who in the university would or would not be promoted to higher rank.

The charges were reiterated in a lengthy meeting of the faculty of the College of Arts & Sciences held Thursday afternoon.

Faculty Council members generally agreed Friday their discussions with Malzahn should center on the restricted use of the evaluation sheets (See MEDIA, Page 10)

Budget is no budget

Sound fiscal management is needed in Randall County Government now.

County commissioners will okay Monday a 1976 budget of $1.7 million, knowing full well that county department heads will without doubt overspend again next year.

Budget review and approval at the county level has become an annual exercise in hand-wringing, but commissioners repeat the same mistakes year after year.

And it all because they view the budget not as a set and immovable document, but simply as a transient guideline, less to be followed than a simple constitutional requirement.

The problem is basically one of splintered authority.

No one in the courthouse wants or has assumed ultimate responsibility for ensuring the budget is maintained, for ensuring that department heads doesn't overspend, that the budget is adequately realistic to take into account contingencies.

If the county budget is not to get out of hand, as it well could and has already begun to do in these inflationary times, commissioners must remove from the shoulders of County Auditor Betty Hodges the burden of being county bookkeeper and allow her to function as a kind of county business manager.

They must give this business manager the lee-way to assume responsibility and commensurate accountability for the maintenance of a budget of integrity.

The county's outside auditing firm has recommended this but no action has been taken.

Now is the time for commissioners to move to provide sound money management in the future. — C.W.

Adage vindicated

An old saw, antithetical to the stereotypical American dream, was vindicated this week with the capture of Patty Hearst, heiress to the multi-millions of her father and grandfather of newspaper fame.

Wealth, we've been told, brings neither happiness nor virtue.

Nevertheless, the promise of America is wealth, equated in the minds of those who don't have it with both virtue and happiness.

It is startling for those who yearn to try their hands at balancing virtue and happiness with the scales of wealth to see a none-too-contrite potential millionaire clench her fist and reiterate her profession of faith in the urban guerilla movement.

Perhaps rampant inflation and dogged recession, while little understood and defiant of manipulation, will unwittingly preserve our virtue and happiness? — C.W.

The best thing you can say about Potter County's four commissioners is that they aren't Randall County commissioners.

There's not a county commissioner in the world, much less in Texas, who's worth $14,750 a year.

Yet that's exactly what Potter County commissioners propose to pay themselves when 1976 opens. The $14,750 figure represents a salary increase of 41.6 per cent over the current salary.

If Potter County residents don't rise up in arms, as they should at such a suggestion, their county commissioners will make almost twice as much during 1976 as will Randall County commissioners.

Randall commissioners have programmed an across-the-board six per cent pay hike in the 1976 budget. If the pay raise is given, they will make $7886.40 per year beginning in 1976.

In addition to the salary increases, the commissioners in Potter County will give themselves, they will hike by about 37 per cent the salaries of the county judge, county attorney, court at law judge and sheriff. With the raises, those officials will make $27,000 a year.

Randall County's judge, Woody Pond, will make $13,680 next year if he gets the programmed pay raise. Sheriff Cliff Longest will make $15,582 with a pay raise of six per cent. Randall County doesn't have a county attorney or a county court at law judge.

The point is this: sometime ago in the almost untraceable past, Potter County officials went absolutely berserk. They have countenanced, if not encouraged, a county government gone wild.

With only a third more residents in Potter County than there are in Randall County, that county spends over twice as much per capita on providing county governmental services.

And, it should be noted, the bulk of Potter County's population lies within the confines of the Amarillo city limits.

Current year budget analyses reveal that the per capita cost of county government in Potter County is about $48 per year while the per capita cost in Randall County is about $20.

Potter County supports a sheriff's department with 62 employees, one each for the cows located outside the Amarillo city limits.

Potter County supports a county judge who proposed to take home $27,000 a year but who has a six- to seven-hour working day, if the office hours posted on his door are adhered to, and who hears no judicial criminal cases other than probate and such.

Potter County supports four commissioners on a proposed salary of $14,750 a year, when the commissioners are responsible for only the most menial of governmental functions. Contrast their I agree with that of Amarillo city commissioners, who draw no pay.

Not only does Potter County outspend Randall County in every departmental area, it also outspends both in total dollars and in per capita expenditures many departments in Lubbock County, which has twice as many residents.

Potter County, in short, is an unbelievable leech, sucking dry the tax blood of its citizens, and returning only those meager services mandated by the Texas Constitution and laws.

If there was ever a government rip-off to be cursed, to be investigated, and to be censured, it is Potter County's.

Which is also to say that Randall County commissioners, although we curse them, are doing a relatively good job in running county government here.

Our county commissioners, a more conservative and more responsible bunch, try, I think, to do what they believe best. That doesn't mean I agree with all that they do.

Only as long as they remain responsible and only as long as they maintain the proper perspective on governmental spending, however, will our county commissioners be able to hold back the kind of profligate and untamed passion to consume taxpayer dollars which has manifested itself in Potter County.

During these inflationary times, when money is hard to come by for government and taxpayer alike, it is urgent that commissioners take even more seriously their task of budgeting, of controlling the budget and of spending.

A run-away governmental machine like that in Potter County could take hold here if diligence is sacrificed.

America enjoys an abundance of food, and helps to feed the world, not because we have more productive land than other nations, but because of our policy of private ownership.

Productivity, thrift, and independence are inspired by private ownership as surely as they are quenched by communes.

Why should one person work harder than another if all get the same reward?

When Russian farmers were allowed a tiny tract to grow food for their families, and sell any surplus, the manager of the communes soon found that the gardens were producing out of all proportion to the farms.

Did that information persuade Russian rulers to return the land to private ownership?

No. The farmers were deprived of the gardens, so now American farmers have to feed them.

The same pernicious government control that limits production in all totalitarian countries is creeping up on America.

The Land Use Bill, the Environmental Protection Agency, and the Agency for Consumer Advocacy are labeled "protective devices" here. It's all "for the good of the people."

In Russia it is called communism.

The graduated income tax, the food stamp program, subsidized housing, etc., are all practical methods of taking from each according to his ability, and giving to each according to his need.

That Marxian philosophy has created scarcity and want everywhere it has ever been applied.

However impractical the pretense, our government keeps pretending we are all equal. The truth is that no two people are equal anywhere, and it is especially true in America.

Some Americans crave caviar and lobster; others had much rather have brown beans and cornbread — or a hamburger and french fries.

Some people like a soft bed; others had rather sleep on the floor.

Some want a palatial home; others are more comfortable in a tent.

Some like luxurious automobiles; others prefer motorcycles.

Many people cannot be happy unless they accomplish some productive work each day.

Then there are people who are insulted if they are expected to take care of their own needs. If their beds are made, meals prepared, or dishes washed, someone else has to do it.

There are people whose concept of genuine relaxation is to sit and watch television all day. And that would drive workaholics right up the wall.

Some people enjoy spending money; others enjoy saving it.

Just as no two people have the same fingerprints, no two have the same needs or desires. Any attempt to force all people into the same mold is doomed to failure.

Equality is a reality in prisons, mental hospitals, and slavery. But free men will never be equal, and equal men are never free.

If the weak are permitted to devour the strong, who will take care of the weak?

The Kitchen Sink

They call it the Tri-State Fair, hubby tells me, because it's held in Amarillo, Tex., you can hear the midway on a clear night in Clovis, N.M., and you can smell the bull barn in Altus, Okla.

Alternatively, however, I would propose that they call it the Tri-State Fair because on a given night with three kids you trek the mile through the commercial exhibits, animal barns, midway and restrooms that you could expect to travel on a trip from Albuquerque through Dallas-Fort Worth to Oklahoma City.

Hubby and I decided to take the kids to the fair. We go in for family outings, didn't want to spend the money for a baby sitter and decided Rebecca would enjoy it anyway.

So one early evening in Fair Week, we entered the gates: Hubby with Rebecca peering in quisitively over the edge of the orange backpack and a week's salary in his pocket; D'Arcy wide-eyed and running at full speed for the Midway; Julie clutching her security blanket already unsure of all the people and noises; and me carrying a large purse and diaper bag filled with emergency medical kit, snakebite kit, diapers, pins, hand lotion, mosquito spray, kleenex, comb, brush, aspirin, Alka Seltzer, can opener, toothpicks, fingernail clippers, bubble gum, and a leftover peanut butter and jelly sandwich.

I was prepared for anything, I thought, remembering as we plunked down our admission price I'd forgotten the one thing I had wanted to bring — disposable hand and face wipes like you get at fried chicken places.

We had also carefully prepared the kids. Due to finances and inflation, we had cautioned them before leaving home that they could each expect one corn dog, one soft drink, and two other items to eat. They could ride two rides each. No hats, teddy bears, necklaces, whistles, feathers, pictures, drawings, doodads or hickydooos.

Thirty-seven seconds after entering the gate D'Arcy wanted her cotton candy. Julie took up the cry and neither quieted down until we explained we were going to see neat things in the exhibits buildings.

So we herded through one building and Julie, it being close to 6 p.m., wanted to opt for dried corn on display rather than wait for her cotton candy.

D'Arcy wanted to visit the bathroom.

On to another building, where D'Arcy wanted a big 10 yards of licorice for only $1. Julie wanted to visit the bathroom.

At any rate, that's the way it went.

Fairs, as first fashioned, are for awards and our family would have undoubtedly won a few had we formally entered. Like:

BRAVERY AWARD WITH OAKLEAF CLUSTER: Julie rode her first amusement park ride—little boats. Harmless little things which go around in a tight circle slowly and on wheels not water. As D'Arcy grinned largely seated beside her little sister, Julie screamed bloody murder. Not even the flashing lights, or the buzzer would quiet her. Finally, the ride ended and as I pulled Julie out of the boat seat, she quit blubbering long enough to ask if she could ride again.

FIRST PLACE, BOTTOMLESS PIT DIVISION: D'Arcy finished off a corn dog and coke, cotton candy and candied apple in five minutes flat, yearned after some Mexican food, and wanted her own corn on the cob. On the way home, she wanted to stop for a quick pizza.

SPECIAL I'M STUCK ON YOU AWARD: Julie craved a giant taffy apple, with gooey brown caramel on the outside.

We pried her off four people in the agriculture building, two people on the midway and finally she stuck her apple to a Khiva clown, then reached out with sticky fingers to grab a total stranger's shins. We threw the apple away to avoid a mass pile-up.

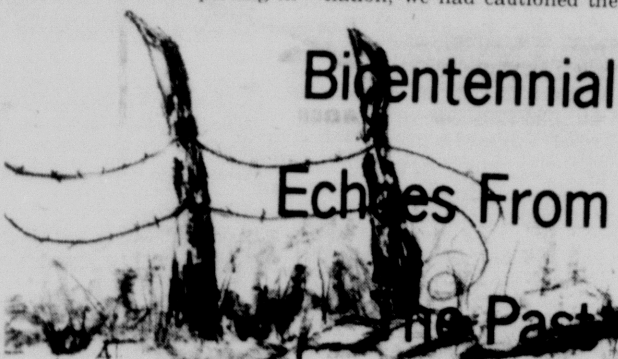

SWEEPSTAKES IN WHAT ARE THOSE THINGS? DEPT.: D'Arcy asked questions about everything at the top of her voice. And in the bull barn, Hubby and I turned red-faced to each other to avoid the giggles and smirks of strangers as she interrogated us about animal anatomy.

DISCOVERY AWARD: To me, for managing to locate a restroom in time when the girls announced in unison they 'had to go' in the middle of the Midway.

GOOD SPORT AWARD: To hubby, who doesn't like animals, hot dogs, rides or large crowds of people, but spent about 25 bucks on them.

RULES ARE MADE TO BE BROKEN AWARD: To hubby, too.

The kids rode merry-go-rounds, and buses, and rockets, and boats and ... ate all kinds of junk and walked off with a couple of souvenirs each, not the least of which was a great big smile.

Bicentennial Echoes From the Past

By MARY ALICE HINES

Although this column has concentrated so far on the Canyon area during the late 1880's, I would like to share a document with you that illustrates the mood and feelings of a Revolutionary soldier. The following is a declaration that my great, great, great grandfather, Solomon Bennett made in the Carroll County, Tennessee Court of Pleas and Quarters on September 10, 1832. He was applying for his Revolutionary War pension according to the Act of Congress passed on June 7, 1832. The document was recorded in script by the county clerk while my ancestor recited his experiences during the war, so you must overlook the colloquial language and the bad grammar. He was seventy-six years old at this time. The following excerpts are taken from the declaration mentioned:

... That he entered the service of the United States in the year of our Lord Seventeen hundred seventy six in the latter part as a Private soldier of the Regular Army in the company commanded by Captain Jacob Turner in the fourth Regiment of the North Carolina Continental Line commanded by Colonel Jones who resigned before the Battle of Brandywine and who was succeeded in the command of the said regiment by Major Pointer, who commanded the aforesaid Regiment in the aforesaid Battle of Brandywine in which the declarant was in also. His Captain Jacob Turner fell gloriously fighting at the head of his company in the aforesaid battle a brave and highminded officer and soldier. His Lieutenant was William Allen — General George Washington was the commander-in-Chief of the Regular forces and Major General LaFayette was seen by me in the foremost ranks of the Battle's rage until he was wounded and carried off the field. This battle lasted for three days some part of the time was in maneuvering, some part of the time in the outposts skirmishing and sometimes in close action when at last we were compelled to retreat. This action was on the fourteenth day of September, 1777, that is the last day of the general action when the Americans retreated and took up their winter quarters at Valley Forge and when the campaign for the year 1777 closed the British Army wintered in Philadelphia under the Command of General Howe who was the Commander in Chief at the Battle of Brandywine of the British Forces as I now believe perhaps Lord Cornwallis, but of which I am not now certain. This declarant thinks Col. Jones commanded his Regiment at the Battle of Sandy Hook but of this he is not now certain.

This declarant states that after this his Regiment with two or three regiments of the North Carolina Continental Force were detailed off and ordered to march under the command of Col. Campbell to the relief of Charleston, South Carolina but which had been surrendered by General Lincoln previous to our arrival then joined the American Army then under the Command of Major General Horatio Gates and became attached to the Command of General Barron DeColb. This Division sustained itself gloriously and not until DeColb fell did the regulars give an inch of ground. Col. Campbell fell in the action at the head of our Regiment exhorting with his last breath never to give an inch of ground but after DeColb had fallen and finding that the militia with General Gates our Commander had deserted us we were compelled to make a disorderly retreat after sustaining a slaughter from the British

Citizen Committee Rules Slide Show Too Subtle

A photographic slide show on Canyon's schools, intended for use as a publicity instrument to highlight the needs of the system in an anticipated bond election push later this fall, was judged too subtle Thursday night by citizen-members of a publicity advisory committee.

Members of the group, which is working alongside two other citizens advisory committees now studying ways to provide additional space for ever-growing student numbers here, told

Mrs. Ruth Holladay and Mrs. Vondean McGregor to beef up the presentation to include more illustrations of the present-overcrowding in Canyon's schools.

Mrs. Holladay and Mrs. McGregor, secondary and elementary curriculum directors in the public school system respectively, had worked up the slide presentation and accompanying script for approval by the committee.

"You've presented the bright side of the school, which is good," Earl Reynolds told the two curriculum directors, "but I think now — well, you're not going to sell a bond issue with that."

Reynolds and Mrs. Lois Hull, members of the citizens publicity committee, said the slide show as presented was too subtle and would include more comment on the over-crowded conditions of the schools in Canyon.

Clarence Eugene Thompson, another committee member, suggested the slide show be basically designed to document a need for additional facilities.

As currently designed, the slide production gives only a hint at overcrowding — with mention of four portable classrooms on the Gene Howe Elementary School campus.

The production as reviewed Thursday night by the committee outlined the curriculum of the school district and mentioned the on-going study of additional facilities needs only briefly at the close of the show.

The slide show, after revision to include more comment on the over-crowding, will be presented to various civic organizations during the next two months. It was presented to Rotary Club and Kiwanis Club members last week and is to be presented to Rex Reeves PTA members Monday night.

The publicity committee, appointed by the Canyon School Board, is to come up with methods of publicizing and supporting the recommendations of the two citizens advisory committees which are now studying the problem of over-crowding.

Members of the Committee for Sound Financing, also appointed by the school board, have already recommended the board up the tax valuation in the district from 40 per cent to 100 per cent. They have also recommended the formulas used to figure market value be upgraded to reflect 1975 building costs.

No recommendations have yet been issued by members of the Committee for Quality Education.

Mrs. Holladay said Thursday night the publicity committee is looking into other avenues of publicizing the recommendations of the two other committees besides the slide show presentation.

She said one committee member is checking into the possibility of purchasing outdoor advertising to publicize a possible bond election.

The use of brochures and handbills and a mailer to all taxpayers in the district urging the recommendations of the citizens groups be accepted have also been explored, she said.

A telephone committee and door-to-door canvassing group are also being organized to urge people to vote if a bond election is called.

WT Science Group Sponsors Magazine

Members of the new West Texas State University chapter of Sigma Gamma Epsilon, an earth sciences honorary society, joined together to sponsor a complete issue of the society's magazine, "The Compass."

All feature articles contained in the spring, 1975 edition have been authored by chapter members among WTSU students and faculty.

"This is quite a group," says WTSU Gamma Upsilon chapter faculty sponsor James Underwood, "especially for a chapter so newly-formed."

The WTSU chapter was formally established on April 28, 1974. Its goals and objectives are the scholastic and scientific advancement of its members and the extension of the relations of friendship and assistance among colleges, universities and scientific schools with recognized standing which are devoted to the advancement of the earth sciences.

Opening the list of articles in the magazine is a "History of Geology and Anthropology at West Texas State University," which was authored by geology professors Underwood and Gerald E. Schultz.

Master's student Roberta Speer wrote an article entitled "Bison Remains from the Rex Rodgers Site." She received her WT master's degree last May, and is now a research assistant on the WTSU campus.

Students J. L. Gilbert and Robert Smith, also master's degree students last May, joined WTSU geology professor George Asquith to create an article on the "Fortran IV Program for the Analysis of Sedimentary Structures."

Calhoun-Bauer Marriage Vows Read

Miss Diana Lynn Calhoun and Ricky Lee Bauer, both of Verona, Missouri, were married at Monett, Missouri in St. John's Lutheran Church on August 29 with Rev. Merwin C. Desens officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Calhoun of Verona, Missouri and the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Roy Bauer of Verona, Missouri, are former residents of Canyon. The bridegroom attended Canyon Schools before moving to Missouri with his family as an eighth grade student.

For her wedding the bride chose a floor length wedding gown of chantilly lace styled with a high neckline, long-fitted sleeves and a lifted waistline. The A-line skirt swept to a chapel length train in the back and her fingertip veil of silk illusion was edged with matching lace and secured to a camelot headpiece adorned with lace and pearls. She carried a bouquet of long cascade springtime daisies and carnations with matching ribbon streamers tied in lover's knots.

Attending the bride were Miss Vicky Meyer as maid of honor and bridesmaids Mrs. Sherman Earnhart and Miss Cheryl Bauer, sister of the bridegroom. They wore yellow floral print dotted swiss floor length dresses and carried colonial bouquets of springtime daisies with matching streamers.

Tim Henson was best man and groomsmen were Dwayne Bauer, cousin of the bridegroom, Rick Calhoun, brother of the bride. Ushers were Steve Bauer, the bridegroom's cousin, and Ric Henson.

Candlelighters were Leah Bauer, sister of the bridegroom, and Clayton Ramm, cousin of the bridegroom. Flower girl was Donna Gayle Cox and Bryan Blaylock was ringbearer, both cousins of the bridegroom.

The bridegroom's cousin, Nancy Ramm, provided music for the occasion and an aunt of the bridegroom, Mrs. Ernest Ramm, sang Color My World and

The Lord's Prayer.

A reception in the church basement was held after the ceremony with Mrs. Rick Calhoun and Miss Carla Beth Bauer serving. A rehearsal supper was held at the country home of the bridegroom's parents previous to the wedding with a barbecue supper being served members of the wedding party and their families.

The couple has established their home west of Verona following a brief honeymoon trip. Out of town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Coale of San Antonio; Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Tompkins, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Tucek, Mrs. Phil

Stevens and Tonya, all of Canyon; Mrs. Edna Bauer and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ramm and family of Muleshoe, Texas; Mrs. Harry Walker of Las Vegas, Nevada; Mr. and Mrs. Don Blalack and family of Topeka, Kansas; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Key of Tecumseh, Oklahoma; Franklin Bauer, Steve and Carla of Everton, Missouri; and Mr. and Mrs. Dwayne Bauer, Mrs. Erna Bauer and Mrs. Leona Knox of Gravette, Arkansas. Mrs. Bauer of Muleshoe, the bridegroom's grandmother and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Leseberg of Verona, Missouri, formerly of Canyon, were special guests for the event.

Mrs. Neil James nee Susan Lain

Miss Lain-Neil James Married

The marriage of Susan Lain of Panhandle and Neil James of Canyon was confirmed on Friday, August 29, in ceremonies read at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ford Lain at Panhandle.

Marriage vows were read before arrangements of blue carnations with James Curleson, cousin of the bride, officiating. Traditional wedding music was provided by Laina Nelson, a cousin of the bride.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a formal wedding gown of bridal crepe with myristic overlay and long sheer sleeves with a wide-fitted band at the wrist featuring lace with seed pearl accents. She wore a chapel train and headpiece veil accented with lace and pearls and carried a bouquet of white carnations and daisies tied in blue atop a hymnal which had belonged to her great-grandmother. Other traditional additions to her attire were a pin belonging to the groom's great grandmother and a $2 bill which is a family tradition.

Christy Lain served as her sister's maid of honor and bridesmaid was Mrs. Terry Stansel. Best man was Ernie Wilson of Canyon with Del Ray James of Canyon serving as his brother's groomsman. The reading of marriage vows was concluded with The Lord's Prayer by vocalist, James Burleson.

A white lace cloth over blue decorated the serving table for the reception which followed the ceremony. Crystal and silver appointments were used and the cake was a creation of Jeannine Allen, the bride's cousin from Memphis, and consisted of a blue fountain sparkling under three tiers of white and blue with a miniature bridal couple on the top tier of the cake. Serving were Debra Crowther of Shallowater, cousin of the bride, and Gayla Knierim of Panhandle.

A rehearsal buffet was hosted by the bridegroom's parents for the wedding party previous to the exchange of vows.

The couple is at home near Canyon where the bride will continue her education at West Texas State University, and the bridegroom is employed with the City of Canyon.

Canyon Community Concert Association has opened their annual membership drive in the community with renewal memberships being taken through September 29.

New members may join the group during the community drive to be headquartered at Southwestern Public Service Building September 29 - October 4. The on-campus membership drive is being directed by Bill Evans with the city membership campaign under the guidance of Mrs. Joseph Findley.

The Community Concerts Series annually brings in artists in their field to entertain local residents. This year's program for local concert members will include the national folk ballet of Korea, the New York Brass Quintet and Jorge Morel, classical guitarist, during the season.

CCA memberships are available at the following price schedule: $12.50 for adults, $5.00 for students or $35.00 per family including the couple and their children.

Only those holding memberships are eligible to attend the season's concerts. The CCA membership cards also entitle the local members to attend Community Concerts in Hereford, Borger, Lubbock and Clovis, New Mexico on the reciprocity schedule.

The renewal campaign for the Canyon Community Concert Association will conclude September 29 with a worker's dinner to be held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Frank J. Kelley at 1522 South Bowie. The menu that evening will feature a Spanish buffet.

Canyon CCA workers involved in the membership campaign with Mrs. Findley and Evans are: Mrs. Lynn McKenzie, Stanley Potter, Don Harrington, Dr. Gerald Schultz, Mrs. Edward Schmutzer, Mrs. W. E. Parker, Kim Taylor, Dr. Joe Findley, Mrs. Glenn Dowlen, Mrs. D. A. Sanders, Mrs. Wm. R. Wilson, Mrs. Ples Harper, Mrs. Truett Hull, Mrs. L. H. Owens, Mrs. T. E.

Fiesta Foods Program Offers 'Beef' Hints

Randall County consumers will be given tips on "smart shopping and better cooking" when they attend the "Fiesta Foods" program scheduled here on Wednesday, Sept. 24.

The public program will be conducted in the Farm Bureau Building, 1714 5th Avenue, Canyon, beginning at 1:30 p.m., and is being sponsored by Randall County Extension Service where John Brazzil and Becky Hall serve as local county extension agents.

Dr. Frank Orts, meat specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, will cover information on selection, pricing and understanding the beef animal. He will also give details on the meat industry's new standardized meat cut labeling system and will discuss the complex industry which moves meat from the farms, ranches and feedlots to the homes of America.

Information on stretching the beef dollar will be presented during the two-hour free program by Miss Jayne Hager, merchandising home economist with the National Livestock and Meat Board. Miss Hager is a member of the American Home Economics Association, Home Economists in Business, and the Society of Consumer Affairs Professionals in Business.

Miss Hager says that "despite the bad weather, market disruptions and price fluctuations of the past year, the livestock and meat industry of the United States still has the production efficiency and capacity to meet the demand for increased supplies of high quality beef, veal, pork and lamb in this country and abroad."

She received her degree in home economics education and has a background in radio and television and prior to joining the National Livestock and Meat Board held an administrative position with a youth agency for two years.

Circus Coming To Town

Circus fans of all ages will not want to miss the Emmett Kelly, Jr., Star-Spangled Circus at West Texas State University Oct. 3. Sponsored by the WTSU Student Activities Council, the one-ring circus will present shows at 4:30 and 7:30 p.m. in the All-Purpose Room of the Activities Center.

Tickets will be $2 for children under 12, $3 for general admission and $1.50 for current WTSU students.

With a total of nine acts, the 100-minute show will include the Amazing Ashtons, the Bertini's and the Bruski's.

The Ashtons are a family of six acrobats from Australia. The Bertini's, a Ringling Brothers Circus act, are Czechoslovakian acrobats who came to the United States 12 years ago. A Polish aerialist act, the Bruski's, spent one year in the Moscow Circus, the Bulgarian Circus and starred in the center ring of the Ringling Brothers Circus for three years.

Star of the show, Kelly creates the "Weary Willie" character his father made famous during the depression. Kelly has made countless appearances across the country, including serving as Grand Marshall in parades, visits to hospitals and as a guest on major network television shows.

Kelly was born on the closing day of a circus in Tennessee, to parents who were then billed as the fastest double trapeze act in show business. Until reaching school age, Kelly traveled with his parents.

After participating in the invasion of Leyte, P.I., Iwo Jima and Okinawa, Kelly was discharged from the US Navy in 1945. He then worked as an automotive mechanic and railroad switcher.

Debuting in Peru, Ind., Kelly entered show business in 1960 at the Circus City Festival.

In 1964 he opened the Kodak

With his own circus, Kelly is the only circus to play the White House.

Producing the special circus event will be Leonard Green, a theatrical agent, personal manager, concert theater, film and television producer. He created the show in 1971.

The council expanded the jurisdiction to include complaints of all kinds, not just those involving the traditional discrimination basis.

the Buffalo 11 and turned the ball over to the offense. Bo Robinson, a talented Lamesa freshman, carried to the 15 for a four-yard pickup and then Robert Mayberry carried to the 20 over left tackle before he dropped the ball and got up to find Tulsa's Anthony Fields in possession.

With the ball on the 20, Blount sent Carlisle Cantrell around left end for 14 yards to the six, then sent Tom Bailey off left tackle for one, and finally called on Bailey again for a right-end pitchout for five yards and the score. Kruse again made good on his kick, making the score with 7:16 remaining in the first quarter, Tulsa 14 and WTSU 0.

It took another quarter hour of playing time before the Buffaloes had settled into solid football playing.

After taking a Tulsa punt on their own 25, the Buffs moved 75 yards in 11 plays to score. The series was highlighted by a 23-yard bomb from Quarterback Tully Blanchard to Wiley to the Tulsa 28.

Blanchard tossed a lateral pass to Freddie Turner and Turner scampered 10 yards for the final yardage with 5:51 remaining in the half. Wyre's kick was good for the seventh Buff point.

Later in the half, with just over a minute of play remaining, Wyre again got a chance to split the uprights after the Buffs had moved the ball from the 49 to the Tulsa 23 before being bogged down by a Hurricane defensive effort.

On a fourth and six situation, Wyre tried the field goal from the 30 and the ball fell just short of the goal.

Early in the second half, the Buffaloes tried again to reach the goal line after Jeff Nunn grabbed a Blount aerial at the Tulsa 29 and returned it to the 19 before being brought down.

Blanchard moved his charges to within the 10 yard stripe, but there the Buffalo offense gave out. A Blanchard pass to Keith Oxley at the goal line was incomplete. Another aerial to Wiley was incomplete.

But, on a fourth and goal to go call, Blanchard pitched out to Turner who again romped around right end for the score.

A Wyre kick tied up the game at 14 all with 7:06 remaining in the third stanza.

While the Buffalo defense, working much of the last half without the help of stalwart Floyd Jones who suffered an ankle injury, managed to keep the Hurricane from a rushing score during the remainder of the game, Tulsa managed to come within field goal distance for Kruse three more times before the final gun.

Tulsa led West Texas in first downs 14-10, in yards rushing with 199 to 160, and in yards passing with 140 to 38.

Next week, the Buffaloes will take a break in their schedule.

for other parts of the county should they be needed.

"I feel like this is an accomplishment on the part of Randall County," Lindsey said Saturday. "Maybe not in money, but in terms of service and coverage of the county."

Lindsey, who authored a rural fire plan which calls on Canyon, Umbarger, Happy, Bushland and Tanglewood fire departments for support, was pleased with the results of his negotiation sessions.

If commissioners approve the new contract Monday, the fire plan will be for one year with the parties to the agreement able to renegotiate the annual price at renewal time.

Dragoons thus ended the Battle fatal to the American cause. After this Col. Pinkney of Pinkney Eaton commanded our Regiment which joined the American Army under the command of General Nathaniel Green under this command he was in the Battle of Eaton Springs.

"... From this place the American Army was compelled to make a rapid retreat to the North, when at the Battle of Hadford (?) courthouse they came in contact with the British Army then under the command of Lord Cornwallis. In this battle we claimed the victory for although we did not keep the field we laid within two miles thereof the British retreating that night leaving their wounded and dead upon the field of battle which were afterward buried by our men. This declarant was at the surrender of Charleston and witnessed with joy the final departure of the British Army from the shores of Carolina when he was regularly discharged and which discharge he has long since lost."

While Solomon was trying to receive his pension he was required to correspond several times with his congressman and my family has these notes from his representative. This congressman later came to Texas to die gloriously at the Battle of the Alamo - the Honorable David Crockett. Ole Davey was able to get Solomon's papers right on through and the declarant was declared a regular revolutionary soldier and that he was entitled to all the benefits provided for one.

Area Pioneer Dies Here

Robert Lindsey

An era of Panhandle history came to a close here Friday night with the death of Robert R. Lindsey who arrived in booming Borger in 1926 as an oilfield roughneck and became one of the area's more influential businessmen.

Mr. Lindsey, 77 years old, was stricken while attending the Canyon-Caprock football game in which his grandson, Bob III, was a participant.

Although his home was in Borger, he was well known in Canyon having had extensive farm and ranch holdings in this community for more than 30 years.

Mr. Lindsey was born in Sallisaw in the Indian Territory in what is now Oklahoma Nov. 24, 1897.

As a young man he accompanied his family to Mexico where the Mexican government had encouraged substantial Americans to locate. A revolution forced the family out of that country. The Lindseys lost almost everything in the process.

Shortly after his return to this country, Mr. Lindsey entered the Armed Forces at the advent of World War I and served in the field artillery. He was a non-commissioned officer and had the distinction of having fired the next to last shot of World War I.

Word came down to cease fire but at almost the same instant the young non-com pulled the lanyard of his weapon. A buddy pulled his lanyard a fraction of a second later to go down in history as having fired the conflict's final shot.

Following the war, Mr. Lindsey engaged in oil field work. It was in that capacity that he arrived in Borger for the Panhandle's biggest boom. He was promoted to driller and then learned to operate a rotary rig.

Quitting oilfield work, he went to work for Amarillo Furniture Company's Borger retail outlet and paved the way to a business that would make his name known across the Panhandle for some four decades.

He was married Sept. 28, 1928 to Miss Jacqueline Posey and the young couple opened a second-hand furniture business. Then they bought Jennings Furniture and later changed its name to Lindsey Furniture. The business continues to date under the management of a son, Tommy.

Another son, Bob II, operates the family's farming and ranching interests in Randall and Deaf Smith Counties.

Mr. Lindsey began buying Deaf Smith County land about 1938 and purchased the ranch at Canyon about 1940. Mr. Lindsey took to farming with the same zest he gave to everything else to which he turned his hand.

He was named Randall County Conservationist of the Year one year recently.

Mr. Lindsey spoke his mind without equivocation. In the oriented cities.

Louder, who oversees an organization which interfaces between cities and counties and the federal government for federal programs, said the rural city more than the small city is the victim of the voting blocs in larger urban centers.

Urban centers such as Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston, and San Antonio, he said, are more likely to receive federal aid through programs than are cities like Amarillo, which is considered a more rural area.

Programs which provide housing aid or community development aid have a built-in bias against rural areas, he said, and even small communities within the standard metropolitan statistical areas of large urban centers have a much better chance at prime federal funding than do cities like Canyon.

hoc committee solely to hear Caballero's appeal should Watkins remove the 20-year department head from his position. Caballero has been retained as a full professor of art.

Smallwood said Thursday the committee has retained Amarillo attorney Bill Cornette as its independent legal advisor for the hearing and Cornette has helped draft procedures for the conduct of the hearing.

He said the hearing will not follow a court-type format.

Each side in the controversy—both president and Caballero—will be allowed to present their witnesses for testimony, he said. Then, each side will have the privilege of cross-examination and redirect examination. Committee members will also be allowed to ask questions of witnesses.

Likewise, Smallwood said, the committee will not become involved in ruling on legal questions of relevancy of testimony.

Committee members who will hear the case Thursday will be Smallwood, who is dean of the School of Agriculture; Dr. Dan White, acting dean of the College of Education; Dr. Horace Bailey, chairman of the biology department; Dr. Myron Dees, chairman of the department of health, physical education and recreation; and Dr. Robert Burton, chairman of the department of geology-anthropology.

Watkins, according to a letter to Caballero made public by Caballero, will call as witnesses on his behalf Dr. Ray A. Malzahn, vice president for academic affairs; Dr. John Green, dean of the School of Fine Arts; Bitsy Downing of the university business office; Darold Smith, an art department instructor; and David Rindisbacher, an art department instructor.

Caballero has declined to reveal his witnesses or his answers to charges made by Watkins concerning his work as an administrator.

A lengthy list of charges, generally impugning the nature of Caballero's work as department head, was made public by Caballero when he released the contents of Watkins' letter recently.

University regents will have the power to hear an appeal of the hearing committee's ruling. They are not expected to meet until early October.

Bank and Trust Company of Borger until his death. At the time of his death he was heading a fund raising drive to purchase a $12,000 Steinway Piano for Borger's Frank Phillips College.

Mr. Lindsey was a busy man but he loved people and he set aside time for them. He would give parties at the ranch cabin here and sit surrounded by friends talking for hours. From 100 to 300 always attended the annual ranch picnic where barbecue and ranch style beans headed up the menu.

Mr. Lindsey was a Rotarian and was proud of his 32 years of perfect attendance. He also was a member of Borger First Baptist Church.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 o'clock Monday morning from Borger First Baptist Church with Rev. Paul Burleson, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Highland Park Cemetery of Borger under direction of Minton Funeral Home of that city.

Survivors, other than the wife and the two sons, include two daughters, Mrs. Nettie Lou Holland of Bartlesville, Okla., and Mrs. Joy Stephenson of Coleman; two brothers, J. D. and James Lindsey; and nine grandchildren and one great grandchild.

The family has requested that all memorials be in the form of donations to Boys Ranch.

for a total of $14,710 collected during August.

In addition to current month's sales tax receipts, the comptroller also sends the city collections of back sales taxes.

Local businesses collect the five percent sales tax, forwards the amount to the state, which in turn sends one percent of the amount back for city use.

If indeed, the April check from the state for $5,089 was for the first three months of the year, the revenue anticipated by city officials from the sales tax for 1975 will fall far below the $100,000 budgeted.

Only about $72,000 could be expected from the sales tax should the remaining months of 1975 produce about the same sales tax as in past months.

So far this calendar year, the city has received $54,403 from the state.

"I took a total and I just don't know," Mrs. Strain reported Friday. "We're short by about $4,000 a month."

Mrs. Strain said it is possible the comptroller's office, which last spring switched to a new monthly return system, has failed to remit the city's payment for the first three months. Or, she said, it is also possible the comptroller's office will eventually send the three months total along with future monthly receipt checks.

district.

He said White is also expected to tell board members Estacado Estates developers will be glad to stay in the Canyon School District if new schools are built in the area.

Some other developers in the north part of the district have been pushing for two years to convince the local school board to allow the Amarillo School District to annex portions of land now ready for development.

Jacobs said he does not expect any discussion Tuesday night on a recent proposal by Emmett Fuqua of Quen Sabe Investment Corp. to pay the Canyon district $100,000 to allow Amarillo to annex about 640 acres of development land to the southwest of Amarillo from the Canyon district.

Fuqua in a meeting with Board Members Tom Keeling, Richard Pruett and Ed Wieck two weeks ago made the cash offer.

He also proposed that the board establish a formula to require other developers to ante up cash in exchange for board approval of annexation pleas.

Jacobs said he doesn't expect any discussion, either, of the proposal that a formula be established to figure future cash payments.

He said the board committee of Keeling, Pruett and Wieck must first get together on their thinking before the matter is brought to the board.

of Texas," and because the document would give too much control to the state legislature.

"I'm not absolutely against any changes when changes need to be made," he said, "but I'm not for changing just for the sake of changing."

Pond refuted the position that the present constitution is outmoded and doesn't meet the needs of today's government.

"The parts of the constitution not applicable to everyday government now are simply not used," he said. "So, if we don't need to use them, why worry about them?"

Pond said he is particularly opposed to the amendment which would adopt a new judiciary article for the constitution. That article provides for the establishment of circuit county courts at law, which could be established on a voluntary basis.

He said he is also particularly concerned about more than 100 instances in the proposed document where discretion for implementation of the constitutional mandates is left to the legislature.

The county judge said certain tax provisions might make county government more expensive.

"I urge everyone to get out and vote in the November election," he said. "I'm not trying to tell anybody how they should vote. But as far as I'm concerned, I do not think the passage of these amendments would be in the best interest of the people of Randall County."

State Sen. Max Sherman, who sat in the constitutional convention in 1974 and who voted for submission of the constitution to the electorate this fall, has urged local business club members to support passage of the proposed document.

Pond has been a long-time foe of changes in the current judiciary article of the constitution. He was active in the spring of 1974 in proposing changes in the article to allow establishment of county circuit courts and to eliminate lay county judges from court benches.

Sophomores Seek Wood

Canyon High School sophomores are seeking donations of wood from local residents for use in next weekend's bonfire.

Jerry Allen, a representative of the sophomore class, said the wood will be hauled from the home of the persons donating wood for the annual homecoming event.

The class members were to have begun building the bonfire structure Saturday. It will be lit Thursday at dusk.

The Canyon Eagles meet the Hereford Whitefaces in the homecoming event at Kimbrough Memorial Stadium here Friday night.

He is a 1965 graduate of Abilene Christian College and served churches previously in Hugo, Oklahoma, Fort Stockton, Denver City and Hurst, Texas. Crass and his wife, Joy, come to Canyon from the Pipeline Road Church of Christ congregation in Hurst, Texas. The couple has two children, Kayla, 8, and Kent, 7.

Listed in the 1971 edition of "Outstanding Young Men of America", Crass was recently the speaker for the annual Willson-Morris Lectures at Lubbock Christian College.

Born in Lubbock, Crass was raised on a farm near Silverton and after high school graduation there attended West Texas State University for a fall term before transferring to Lubbock Christian College where he graduated in 1962.

His wife, Joy, is the daughter of Haun Kite who formerly preached for the church in Silverton and is now with a church in Lincoln, Nebraska. Mrs. Crass has a sister in Amarillo whose husband is the new minister for Central Church of Christ there.

Fraternity Looking For Spook House

Kappa Kappa Psi band fraternity at West Texas State University is seeking a site for a "spook house" in the city of Canyon.

The Halloween festivity would be needed for operation October 27-31. Anyone with a vacant building that might be suitable is asked to contact Dr. Gary Garner, 656-2016.

Saxophone Concert Set

A saxophone concert featuring Jamie Martin, student of Dr. Gary Garner, will be presented in the Fine Arts Theatre at 4 p.m., Monday afternoon, Sept. 22.

Donna Saylor will accompany on piano. Martin is the son of Mrs. Koryke Martin and Troy Martin.

He is a member of Kappa Kappa Psi honorary band fraternity, Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia professional music fraternity, Alpha Chi scholastic society, the WTSU Symphonic Band and the WTSU Lab Band.

Typing Added To Program

A new course has been added to the classes being offered this fall through the Canyon Community Education Program.

Beginning Typing will be offered on Tuesday night beginning Sept. 30 from 7-9 p.m. at Canyon High School. The course will last ten weeks and a fee of $14 will be charged.

This course will provide an introduction to the keyboard and manipulation of the operative parts of the typewriter. The course will also provide an opportunity for a refresher for those who need it. An individualized teaching approach will be used.

Beginning Typing is one of nearly 30 courses available to citizens this fall. Other courses include such topics of study as minor home repair, guitar, bridge, drawing, painting, crochet, modeling and interior design.

Eagles Blanked 3-0 In Defensive Battle

An unidentified Canyon Eagle defender puts two Caprock Longhorns in the air during the football clash Friday night. The Eagle defense rose to the occasion with two spectacular goal line stands.

Canyon's tough defense, which has kept opposing rushers from the goal line in two outings, couldn't hold the toe of Caprock's Keith Bartley Friday night as Bartley hit a 14-yard field goal to give the Longhorns a 3-0 victory in Kimbrough Stadium.

Yet to score against its first three AAAA opponents, the Eagles' offense had trouble again Friday night generating the steam necessary to put points on the clock.

The Eagles now stand at 0-2-1 for the season.

The Canyon defense contained an explosive Caprock backfield attack centered around Chuck Velasquez, a speedy 150-pound tailback.

The well-honed punting of Ricky Cooper aided the defensive goal of keeping Caprock contained deep in its own territory.

Cooper's penchant for goal line kicks had Caprock on the ropes midway through the first quarter as he booted one from his own 47 to the one-yard line.

Midway through the second stanza, he booted another to the Caprock two-yard line, effectively stymying their offense.

After a back-and-forth struggle through the main part of two quarters, the Longhorns began their first serious drive of the night with only two minutes showing on the halftime clock.

Capitalizing on a Joe Luquette fumble at the Eagle 22, Caprock moved on the runs of Velasquez and the runs of Quarterback Bobby Stewart, to the five yard line for a first down.

An off-sides penalty moved the ball back to the 10 and the Eagle defense held strong for the next three downs, forcing the Longhorns to turn the ball over on downs at the Eagle three. As time ran out in the half, the Eagles had possession of the ball.

Caprock's first drive of the second half ended with the Longhorns' only points of the game.

Taking the ball from their own 35, they moved in 11 plays to within striking distance of the goal line.

Bartley, on a fourth down and goal to go situation, split the uprights with 6:09 remaining in the quarter for the Caprock three-pointer.

Canyon's offense managed 105 total yards during the game, 57 rushing and 48 in the air. Quarterback Allen Shankles completed only three of 12 passing attempts for the 48 yards.

Leading Eagle rusher for the night was Luquette with 41 yards, followed by Ronnie Whitney with 37.

The Eagles tallied eight first downs.

Caprock had 235 total yards with 231 on the ground and four in the air.

Dennis Skelton, leading ground-gainer for the Longhorns, racked up 94 yards in 15 carries, followed by Velasquez with 81 yards in 24 carries.

The Longhorns had 13 first downs.

The Herford Whitefakes come to Canyon next weekend for a Kimbrough Stadium outing against the Eagles.

Mrs. Hernandez Returns Home

Mrs. Carmen Hernandez of the Canyon Community Family Services Association has returned to Canyon from New Mexico where she had taken her husband, Robert, to the hospital. She reported she will be available to help those in need of aid as of today.

Eagle running back Ronnie Whitney, 33, runs out of the arms of a grasping Caprock defender during Friday night's home opener.

The Canyon offense has yet to put a mark on the scoreboard in three games as they fell to Caprock 3-0.

moderator for the afternoon sessions. The seminar will close at 3:15 p.m. with a summary of the day.

Farmers, ranchers and livestock operators from the Texas Panhandle region, New Mexico and Oklahoma will attend the seminar, Dr. Smallwood said.

Art Appreciation Series Features Hundley's Work

An exhibit of art by Lillie Hundley, retired foreign missionary, will be presented September 23-October 4 at the First National Bank as a part of the bank's continuing series on art appreciation.

Miss Hundley served in the foreign missions work in China, Hawaii and Lebanon for many years and during this time developed art as a hobby. As a missionary to Hawaii, Miss Hundley studied art on Saturdays for 18 months with the well known oil painter, Lloyd Sexton, and during furloughs from mission work had a summer of art instruction at The Christian College of Fort Worth and at Teacher's College of Columbia University.

Since her retirement from mission work, Miss Hundley has also studied watercolor for a term with Dr. Emilio Caballero of West Texas State University.

Miss Hundley says "my main interest and time has been given to people carrying heavy loads of teaching and other mission activities and I believe that everyone should have a hobby or outlet from the strains of their work. In need of my own outlet from the strain of work I have found art to be a wonderful, relaxing and enjoyable hobby."

Her interest in the art and natural beauty of the countries where she worked as a missionary are reflected in many of Miss Hundley's paintings. Local residents are invited to view her paintings during business hours at the First National Bank through October 4.

Budget Hearing Set For Monday

Randall County commissioners will have a public hearing Monday on their proposed 1976 budget of about $1.7 million.

The hearing is set for 2 p.m. in commissioners courtroom on the second floor of the county courthouse in Canyon. Other business will be taken care of beginning at 1 p.m.

The proposed budget, which commissioners informally adopted earlier this month, calls for a deficit of only about $1000.

It also calls for an across-the-board 6 per cent salary increase for county officials and employees.

To raise funds for 1976 operating expenses, commissioners in August hiked county taxes from $1.05 cents per $100 on 17 per cent of valuation to 95 cents per $100 on 25 per cent of valuation.

Other business scheduled for commissioner discussion includes ratification of a rural fire fighting agreement between the county and the City of Amarillo.

WT Prof To Present Paper In Rome

West Texas State University Professor of Geology James Underwood will present a paper at the International Colloquium of Planetary Geology Sept. 22-30 in Rome, Italy. His topic will be "Impact Structures of the Libyan Sahara — Some Comparisons with Mars."

For the last several years, Underwood has been involved in the mapping of a quadrangle on Mars, which is the projected landing site of the recently-launched Viking II space craft.

Underwood has also begun the mapping of the Kuiper quadrangle on Mercury, a National Aeronautics and Space Administration grant project he expects to complete in a year. He will join two other scientists in their analysis of the photographs of the equatorial region taken in Mariner 10's three fly-bys of the planet.

"Mercury is a smaller planet," Underwood noted. "We have seen only 50 per cent of it, so we do not have the magnitude of mapping we faced with Mars."

"Mercury is unique with respect to Mars and the moon, however," Underwood continued, "in that it apparently has compression features like thrust faults, which may be due to contraction or convection currents that cause the plates of the crust to move against one another."

Firefighters To Attend School Here

The Second Annual Canyon Area Fire Control School will be held Tuesday and Wednesday and is sponsored by The State Firemen's and Fire Marshals' Association.

The public is invited to the fire-fighting exercises each night. The training field is located on the corner of 1st Ave. and 3rd St.

Canyon fireman Jerry Lehnick along with other members of the Canyon Fire Department completed preparations for the fire school to be held here Tuesday and Wednesday. Last year, nearly 400 firemen from 47 area towns took part in the school.

Equestrian Center Opens

A new business operation has recently opened in Canyon and offers a complete service for area horsemen.

The Bar-L Equestrian Center, north of Canyon and adjacent to the West Texas State University Farm, is owned by A. W. Lair and is managed by Jayne Weeks.

"We cater to the serious showman as well as the family that just enjoys riding," Mrs. Weeks said.

The center offers complete care for the horses boarded there. To date, there are 20 stalls, each of which are equipped with lights and electricity and automatic waterers. The waterers are heated during the winter months to avoid freezing. In addition to the stalls, the equestrian center has a large tack room and wash rack.

A 100 by 300 foot riding arena and a six-horse hot walker are also on the premises. "We have a natural setting for this type establishment," Mrs. Weeks said. On a whole, the Bar-L Ranch covers approximately 80 acres.

"Mr. Lair felt that the Panhandle area needed a nice place where people could come and ride and also a place where the serious showman would have a nice facility," Mrs. Weeks commented.

In addition to the facilities at the Bar-L Ranch Equestrian Center, lessons in all aspects of English and Western riding are available.

According to Mrs. Weeks, future plans call for lighting the arena, adding roping facilities and eventually having a covered arena. Horse shows also figure into the future of the center.

Mrs. Weeks isn't new to the business of working with horses. She was raised on ranches and has been involved with showing horses since the age of seven. She stopped showing about five years ago when she began giving lessons.

"I feel lucky that I can do what I enjoy most, working with horses and people," she said.

The Ruthart family returned to the Canyon area about 1937 and settled in a house located on the northern edge of the city for a few years before moving into town about 1940.

Old Ad Building Being Rebuilt

Reconstruction work in the Old Administration Building, which was damaged by fire June 23, will be completed and the building ready for occupancy for the second semester, according to John Boone, director of the physical plant.

Debris was cleared and electricity was restored by campus maintenance before Wiley Hicks, Jr., Contractors of Amarillo, began work last week.

Hicks was awarded the contract for the work on a successful low bid of $244,152.

All offices and classrooms in the building received smoke damage and five or six offices were destroyed, Boone said. Damaged rooms will be cleaned and repainted.

Damages to the building amounted to $320,000 while telephone company equipment sustained $500,000 in damages, Boone said.

A grant of $338,000, the largest single emergency fund given by a Texas governor, will also cover repair costs to chairs, desks, typewriters and adding machines, Boone said. The grant was made by Gov. Dolph Briscoe in August.

Driver and Traffic Safety Education, with an enrollment of 18 students, a health and physical education recreation course with 19, and Geography 305, with 13 students, are meeting in the damaged building. Other classes have been moved to the Education Building and the University Complex South.

The three classes were retained in the building because essential equipment, such as maps, was too heavy to move, according to Dr. Ray Malzahn, vice-president for Academic Affairs. The health and physical education classes are meeting in the basement and the geography class is being held in Room 312.

"Classes will not be returned to the building until construction is complete. It's too inconvenient for classes with the work going on," Boone explained. "We'll just have to work around the offices."

Mrs. L.C. Ruthart, 80, had her great-grandson, Michael Webb, and granddaughter, Donna Webb, visiting with her son, Crawford Ruthart, at a family gathering in her home this week.

WT Professor Completes Study

Dr. W.M. (Fred) Stoker, head, department of school services at West Texas State University, has completed a study of the elementary school principalship in Texas.

This study was recently published in "Studies in Education."

The project included a ten percent random sampling of the 3,257 elementary school principals of the state.

Eighty-seven percent of the principals were men although 90 percent of the elementary school teachers were female. Also, only six percent were black and eight percent were of Mexican descent.

The typical principal has over six years of college, works at school over nine hours a day for eleven months each year. He is usually happy in his position and is not seeking a secondary principalship.

The median annual salary was $14,587, although some made as little as $7,500 and ten percent earned over $18,000.

One of the biggest problems revealed by the study was that the principal spent only fifteen percent of his time in supervising the instructional program. Over half of his day was spent in clerical work and management of details.

Dr. Stoker served as an elementary school principal in Ozona and LaMarque, Texas

"American Reflections: A Bicentennial Ball" will be held in the museum's main building. The Pioneer Village will come alive with exhibits and activities suited to the nature of the small stores and shops. A Fashion Show from the museum's historical clothing collection will be Nov. 1. Another major attraction for Museum Week will be the American Watercolor Society exhibit, with watercolors by America's foremost watercolor artists.

The West Texas State University Student Activities Center Gallery is featuring a photography display with Odessa senior, Ken McAdams, as the major exhibitor. The purpose of the show is to provide exposure and publicity for fledgling artists as well as an opportunity to make some sales.

Maize harvest has begun in the Umbarger area with the first load of the golden bronzed grain being received at Umbarger Co-Op Elevator at mid-afternoon on Wednesday, Sept. 17. The maize was cut from farmland 1 1/2 miles northwest of Umbarger which is operated by Ray Gerber and Clarence Beckman. The first load of maize received had a 52-lb. per bushel weight with 15.40 moisture content as elevator workers Henry Ramaekers, left, and Danny Collins watch the unloading.
